

November 2009

Published 16 January 2010

Yet another busy month, hard at work with several exciting new projects including our largest site to date. We have been awarded the contract for building the new web site for europacoln, the first European organisation dedicated to colorectal cancer and it aims to unite patients, carers, healthcare professionals, politicians, the media and the public in the fight against the disease. The new web site is over fifty pages of content, news, image galleries as well as flash content, a big project.

